Dear Keith:

This is in response to any Card Room Operator who may request to run Lucky Ladies on a Double Exposure Blackjack game. Since the Lucky Ladies bonus wager does not conflict in any way with the Double Exposure Blackjack game, we gladly consent to anyone running the two together. Thank you.

Sincerely Yours,

Gary Saul

Double Exposure

Introduction

Double Exposure is a Blackjack variation in which both dealer cards are exposed.

Rules

- From one to eight standard decks, each containing 52 cards may be used.
- Both dealer cards are exposed
- Dealer wins all ties, except on a natural blackjack
- Player blackjack pays even money
- Player may split only once

Rules that can vary include but are not limited to:

- Dealer hits or stands on soft 17
- Tied blackjacks either push or go to the player
- Player may or may not double after a split
- Player may double on any first two cards or not
- Player may split more than once
- Player may or may not split unlike 10 value cards (for example queen and king)
- Insurance may or may not be offered

NOTE: Any deviation from these rules of play must be stated in the Licensee's internal controls.
